INTERIORS INSPIRATION: PRETTY PASTELS

I was so excited when I recently stumbled across the super talented designer Jess Laver's website on a recent internet inspiration crawl! A girl after my own heart, she is a fan of soft colours and creates effortless, elegant spaces and with a natural feeling of calm. I want to move straight into this house and can already imagine myself curled up on that gorgeous soft bed with a good book! If you are looking for create calm and a real sanctuary in your home, then pastels are the way to do it. As always if you keep the background neutral you can always add splashes of colour to reflect your mood or the seasons.

Apologies for the recent period of calm on the blog - I've been on holiday for a few weeks, but blogging will resume as normal from next week!

Beautiful! Can I request something for the next post? I'm moving into a yellow bedroom for school and I've got a rich chestnut brown writing desk. I would love to see or hear how you would work with yellow and make it look elegant!
Blessings,
Sarah

I absolutely adore all the greys. I think they're really sophisticated and a lovely neutral alternative to vanilla walls. Love this post :)

Welcome to Little Miss Homes, one of the UK's top interiors inspiration & lifestyle blogs. I created Little Miss Homes as a way to share my passion for all things property related. Appreciating, emphasising and celebrating beauty and originality in your surroundings is so important and I love helping people achieve this. Whether developing or renovating to turn a house into a home or re-designing and updating to create a unique and memorable space, it's the style, personality and details that make all the difference between average and unforgettable, between beige and bright! I hope you enjoy the blog and look forward to hearing your comments.
